

Guilderland Public Library was founded by the Westbrook Women's Library Committee in 1945. The library's current 27,650 square-foot building was completed on June 6, 1992.

This is your library!

I invite you to explore your library. You'll find everything you'd expect—books, CDs,

DVDs, and a robust website that's a font of information—but there is so much more. Children's storytimes and programs, family movie nights, and educational classes for adults make this an activity center for the community, which is why your library is known as "Guilderland's Gathering Place."

Tim Wiles, Library Director
